. . . .

select a file	11
initiate a version control command	12
direct the version control command and file information to a configuration management service within the integrated development environment	13 create an object using the configuration management service, the object including the file information and the version control command	14 deliver the object to a version control adapter delegate within the integrated development environment	15
call a Python interpreter using the adapter delegate to run a version control adapter	16
access the object using the version control adapter	17
create a user dialogue using the version control adapter to obtain additional user input	18 communicate the file information and the version control command to the version control tool	19 communicate error or other feedback information from the version control tool to the integrated development environment using the version control adapter	20
	FIG.

FIG. 2

FIG.